

2010 Georgia Jessup Competition

Tbilisi State University - Georgia National Champion

The 2010 Georgia Jessup Competition was held on 14-15 February at the Supreme Court of Georgia in Tbilisi. The winner of the Competition was Tbilisi State University. For the second year in a row, Levan Asatiani (Tbilisi State University) won best oralist. The Jessup team from Tbilisi State University represented Georgia at the White & Case International Rounds, also called the Jessup World Championships, in Washington DC in March.

The Final Round judges included Tamar Tomashvili (Department of Public International Law at the Ministry of Justice in Georgia), Jeffrey Robins (US Department of Justice) and Nayalya Bayurova (White & Case).